MYCON General Contractors Begins Construction on New Ambulatory Surgery Center for Brooks Eye Associates of Plano

Dallas, TX, July 6, 2018 – MYCON has started construction on a new ambulatory surgery center (ASC) located at the corner of Gillespie Drive and State Highway 121 in Plano, Texas.

The 20,000 sf ophthalmology clinic and ASC facility will include two operating rooms with pre- and post-surgery rooms, consultation and diagnostic areas, offices and reception area. The project architect is Browne McGregor Architects Inc. of Houston, TX. The owner is Brooks Eye Associates of Plano, TX.

“This project is a huge step forward in the evolution and growth of our practice. It exponentially increases our ability to serve the community. We were excited to engage MYCON as the general contractor for the project and can’t wait to see the finished product,” said Dain Brooks, MD, owner and founder of Brooks Eye Associates.

“After months of research, design and planning by the entire project team, we are very pleased to start building this facility,” said Matt Davis, Project Director at MYCON. “Surgery centers require a unique set of construction qualifications, technical knowledge and precision execution in order to build-out operating rooms, sterile rooms and recovery rooms that are subject to high standards and critical inspections,” continued Davis.

Construction began in June of this year and is targeted for completion in January 2019.

According to Global Markets Insights Inc., the ophthalmology surgeries segment generated more than $12 billion in revenue in 2017. With the aging U.S. population, the ophthalmology segment also experienced strong growth with cataracts and night blindness, along with eye problems from diabetes, as major contributors. In addition, mobile phone use and prolonged exposure to computers and laptops will continue to fuel the segment’s growth.
