MYCON General Contractors Hires Industry Executive Wesley Weaver as Vice President

Dallas, TX, April 1, 2019 – MYCON is pleased to announce that the firm has hired Wesley Weaver as vice president. In his new role, Weaver will focus on developing and managing key client relationships and projects in the commercial and municipal markets. The announcement was made by Charles R. Myers, president and CEO of MYCON.

“We continue to enjoy significant growth and to sustain that growth, we are recruiting top-notch industry talent,” says Myers. “Wesley Weaver shares our values, fits into our culture, and has the professional skills and experience to enable us to deliver outstanding solutions for our clients.” Moreover, says Myers, “Wesley brings strong industry relationships, a proven ability of leading teams and a successful record of driving performance and improving operational efficiencies. He is a great addition to our leadership team.”

Prior to joining MYCON, Weaver spent 18 years with one of the largest family-owned construction companies in the United States where he managed many high profile, multi-million dollar projects in the commercial, education, government, hospitality and sports sectors, among others.

Weaver holds a bachelor’s degree in construction science and environmental design from Texas A&M University. He previously served on the University of Texas at Arlington’s Architect Dean’s Advisory Council and is a past member of QUOIN, Chapter of Associated General Contractor, TEXO.
